

Product Development

What we do @Glocally

Glocally's vision is to revolutionize last mile logistics by providing urban retailers a sustainable same day delivery via cargo bikes. Leveraging their proximity to local customers, we deliver directly from their stores and create opportunities to support your locals!

About the Project Study

Build products that matter - As a Product Manager, you will work with a cross-functional team of engineering, design, data and analytics in a high visibility role. You will be responsible for defining the roadmap, prioritisation and setting the vision for the team. This involves leading multiple projects and cross-team product initiatives across the entire product lifecycle, partnering with business and operational stakeholders as well as understanding and analysing our end-users.

Your Responsibilities

- Successfully launching and constantly improving innovative products, on web and/or mobile devices (iOS/Android) that power last mile logistics
- Understanding of the technical architecture of complex, highly scalable applications
- Ensure strong collaboration and communication across the company and build consensus on the product roadmap

What's in it for you?

- Office in the Munich Urban Colab or remote
- Project Study scope and substance can be individualized to your personal expectations
- Contact and connection to VCs, Business Angels, mentors, and other top-notch founders in Munich
- Laid-back atmosphere in a quickly growing startup
- Applications are possible as a team or individuals.

Your profile

- You own it and like to take responsibility over projects
- Get shit done, meaning you are not afraid of stepping into new and unknown territory
- Experience with low-code environments is a plus
- Automation-first mindset.

Next Steps

If you are excited about working in a high-growth environment and taking ownership, then send your CV and short motivation why you want to work with us to felix@glocally.de. We are looking forward to hearing from you!
